Sin: In a cortain sense, we expect but very little m legislation in aid of the Eight-Hour System, but the little we do expect is of the same importance to us that a few bundred dollars would be in the hands of a manager like A. T. the lever must be placed before the weight is moved, an insig-

A very troublesome inquiry for those who want to get rid of

-by their poverty-to insist upon employment at starvation faced wages, the wages would not fall, although the "supply" of workers in that trade was very much greater than the "demand." Under such circumstances, it would be simply a matter of judgment and discretion who her any of them actually demanded employs ent.

They would be at ful Ill crty to not with reference to their future as well as their present necessities. They could, if they would, say to each other: "If we wait for work until times are good again, when employers can afford to pay as much as they did before, we shall have made as much money of we went to work imme intely at fee wages; for when wages are once brought down they do not go up again very sees, so that a reduct on of wages is dell times simply means a reduction which is to is to or a org time after 'dell times' have gone by. All that we may lose by doing nothing for three months may be made up by the increased earnings of a taking 15 months to carn that which we can earn in 12 f "Supply and demand" cannot bring down the wages of men who can thus set and tall. The have both the means and sense not to "demand" employment when it cannot be had without reducing wages; for it will not pay.

Many a workingman is ready to say, "Well, I could live six menths without 'demanding' labor."

Year but they forget the very important fact that all who so their kind of work are not in this condition; and, in reminding such of their force fulness, we come to the real meaning of the law of "supply and demand," so far as it relates to the price of human labor.

Supply and demand," speaking through low wages to the industrious and saving workers, means, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," and that if they will not they shall pay a serial penalty. There is probably a material as well as a moral penalty attached to the violation of every natural law God is practical as well as senimental, and, until all the mations learn this, they most have wars, and debts, and sholera. "The dirt of the poor man's hovel is the missins of the rich man's parior."

The relation of the po r, ignorant, and generally wretched workers to these who could live six months independent of their employers' payments may be illustrated by the following the Treasury. It will force these institutions into more tmaginary conversation between two such laborers:

maginary conversation between two such laborers:

Poor.—"Certainly but what can I doo! I must beg or starve in a week if I carn nething; and, the fact is, I am glad that you are interested through the matter of wages, in my not insisting upon employment. You now see very clearly that if all who do our kind of labor were as well situated as your self, they could afford to wait until there was a "demand" for year services.

Smart — Well; have you not had the same chance that I have? We were brought up in the same town—went to the same school, &c.—and yet here you are not able to live a week without biddier for employment at starvation prices."

Mr. Poor — Yes: I had as good a chance as you, and you had a right to compare your success to mine, he has a right to compare his success to yours. Do you want those who have done better than you, under the same apparent circumstances, to reproach you for your ill success? If you do not, then think a moment before you reproach those who have not done as well as yourself.

Mr. Smart.—But why are you so very poor? You might have saved something. I press the question because the price my own labor is concerned.

Mr. Poor.—You should have asked this question long before this, when times were good. You probably forget that, if a subject to the price with the same that the notes of a living bank. Mr. Poor.—You should have asked this question long before this, when times were good. You probably forget that, in a certain sense, "thou art thy brother's keeper"—that, if you do not help keep him up, you cannot help his holding you down. Whether I am to biame or not, will not relieve you of the penalty you must pay for my poverty. To any why I am so very poor would involve the reason why some are so very weathly. They have no disposition to ask why, and I have no power to asswor. Chelera has reminded the rich of the exist-ence of such as myself, and the law of supply and demand re-minds you of my low wages, and between you both God means to lift me up.

The poverty of the laborers largely controls their wages; ir low wages accounts for the most of their poverty, as each difficulty helps to aggravate the other; but what is it that keeps wages as high as they are, notwithstanding the comparative poverty of the laborers? When this question is answered. k will be seen that some more of this same power can carry

 Money is in good supply at 6 per cent to brokers, and a good deal is done at 5 per cent. In commercial paper no change. The reports in relation to the Bank of the Metropolis at Washington have disturbed lenders in some degree, and rumor was busy with reports of trouble with correspondents of the bank in this and other cities. The determination of the Government to withdraw from pet National banks the public moneys is a step in the right quiet ways, and take from speculators the facilities they now enjoy for inflating values. Congress ought at once to go a step further, and direct the Assistant-Treasurer at New-York to orgauize a Sorting Bureau of National Currency, and send home everything not redeemable in this city. As the banks are now managed, there is practically no redemption for the majority, and the currency of an ex-ploded "institution" commands greenbacks more readily OHLS—We hear of no movement worthy of special attention. Prices are steady at former quot-tions.

PROVISIONS—The Pork market was very dail on Change and the range of prices a trifle lower than vesterday, closing barely steady with title or no demand; for future delivery the business was fair at about previous rates, the sales embracing some 3,000 bilds. Meas, all selery's option, July, at $30 6210 830 75 for Meas, very lew at the outside figure. $24.250 $21 of or Prime, $27.250 $27.75 for Prime, $27.250 $27.75 for Prime Meas, and $250 $210 $30 5 for Thin Meas. Beef is steady and selling to a fair extent, principally in jobbing losts, the stock is decreading; asless of 575 bilds, at $100 $210 $20 for Thin Meas, were when are not wanted. Beef Hams are out of season and entirely nouthal. Cat Meais meet with a very fair inquiry and prices may be called stoney, particularly for light weights, sales of 400 plays, at 151 wite. for Shoulders, 17;4174c, for Hams, and 244c, tor Western Bagged Hams. Bacon is scarce and firm busin of very active, and we have only to note 100 boxes Cumberland on the fam set with a very fair inquiry and prices may be called stoney, particularly of prime lots, induces much firmness on the part of holders, sales of 500 bible, and texts, but the small supply, particularly of prima lots, them still higher. We claim that wages are kept where they are by the present habits and intelligence of the workers, that more leisure means better habits and more intelligence—but the first of London, Mr. Thomas W. Gale, Mr. Henry L. and that the ingrease of wages, as we process will be at the Pierson. Mr. Jeans N. Phains, Mr. Dudley S. Gregory, at 430., 500 bils. do., buyer July, at 440., and 500 do., buyer July, at 440.
